

Ansty remembers all those people who have died from the covid-19 virus since the start of the pandemic ....

Along with the many Remembrance events in the UK, a 'beacon of remembrance' moment of reflection was held by villagers on the moonlit night of March 23rd. Although we were spared such distress, people in Ansty quietly reflected on the 126, 284 people who have died of the covid-19 coronavirus since the pandemic began one year ago.

It was a perfect moonlit night to pay a doorstep candlelight vigil as a moving tribute to those victims of this awful virus and a fitting end to a day of reflection called to mark the beginning of the first national lockdown exactly a year ago today.

It was a time to reflect on the grief and loss felt by so many not just here but across the world
